Beetle Mania

In Texas, during June, an interesting beetle comes on the scene – the June bug. Some June bugs get rather large, though they are quite harmless. They are innately drawn to the light. In fact, they buzz around as if they would like to get inside that light.

We are also drawn to the light. Yet, the light is not only outside of us, it is also inside us. It is our light that attracts others to us, much like the June bug. And, we are naturally drawn to others' light.

We are constantly radiating our light, whether we realize it or not. It is an inherent part of who we are. There may be times when our light is dimmed by circumstances. At other times, our light may be blinding. Somewhere in the middle lies the balance of shining our light in a way that illuminates all around us.

In ancient Egypt, the beetle was a symbol of the sun's travels across the sky. Ra, the sun god, played a role in transformation. From grub to adult, the beetle transforms itself through various stages. Thus, the beetle has come to be associated with metamorphosis, transformation, and resurrection.

Humanity is in the throes of transformation. We are moving toward a different paradigm. At a crossroads, we must choose how we will morph. It is time for us to tap into our light, reshape and shift it, so we can shine more brightly.

Lights, Camera, Action

Hot summers mean lots of things. For many of us, it's an opportunity to stay indoors and watch a good movie. Recently, the film Keepers of the Light was shown in Austin. An inspiring journey about a woman's personal transformation. A glimpse into the Incas of Peru, with shaman Puma as our guide. This wonderful film is full of powerful downloads and magic.

Poet's Corner

Moonlight reflects on
Rippling midnight blue waters
A shining mirage

Two fawns on a lawn
Eating to their heart's content —
Afternoon delight
