Awareness

Awareness is part of consciousness. There is conscious, subconscious, superconscious, collective conscious, and cosmic conscious. A common thread of awareness runs through all forms of consciousness. They are woven together into an intricate fabric of oneness.

Four 'I's of Knowing

These days, you need all your 'I's, including your third eye, to see what lies ahead. Let's explore these 'I's of knowing.

Intelligence – What you know, you know.

Insight – What you know, you don't know.

Intuition – What you don't know, you know.

Innocence – What you don't know, you don't know.

Intelligence – What you know, you know.

These are things that you know, through education, reading, or plain common sense. You do not question this information, as it is a part of your library of knowledge. Perhaps it is an area of expertise, acquired through education and reading, as well as experience. You are unwavering in this knowledge and your own intelligence.

Insight – What you know, you don't know.

Beyond your knowledge and experience, are things you know that you don't know. Information you have yet to obtain, study, or experience first hand. You do not pretend to know something you do not. Quite readily, you willing admit not knowing. Your acknowledgement has insight.

Intuition – What you don't know, you know.

Past the veil of consciousness lies a mystery, where you know what you don't know. It is a psychic connection. An ability to know something you ordinarily would not know. It's as if you were given a glimpse of the future. In fact, you have. Intuition is an innate knowing that goes beyond mere knowledge. There is no logical explanation.

Innocence – What you don't know, you don't know.

These are the things you are completely unaware of, through no fault of your own. They simply do not exist in your consciousness nor are you even aware of their existence. No blip on the radar screen whatsoever. With absolutely no knowledge, it truly is innocence.

Intelligence, insight, intuition, and innocence are neither good nor bad. They are merely representations of where your knowingness lies at any given moment, for any given thing. Your knowing can change in a nanosecond. Innocence can be transformed into insight, and insight into intelligence. Intuition can be a powerful motivator to transform your knowledge and take action. Choose to harness your consciousness in a way that serves you, regardless of your level of knowledge. Follow your inner guidance. Open your 'I's with awareness.
