Power

© Kim Rene Kiefer

Personal power is a key element of success. It's not about dominating others though. It's about harnessing your own inner assets. Through your courage, strength, persistence, and perseverance you can make it through any challenge. By tapping into your power reservoir, you can amp it up through driven intention and focused attention. Once you have powered up, nothing can stop you from suiting up, showing up, and stepping up to live your destined purpose.

Elephant

As the largest mammal, elephant embodies strength and power. They are sacred and royal creatures. According to Ted Andrews, in Animal Speak, "If elephant has come to you, prepare to draw upon the most ancient of wisdom and power." Cultivating your wisdom is very powerful.

Quote

"He who controls others may be powerful, but he who has mastered himself is mightier still." ~ Lao Tzu

Suit Up, Show Up, Step Up

The part you play in life is important. You are unique, and you have something only you can offer. No one else has that special combination that you bring to the table. You are the secret sauce. In order to share your hidden talents, you must ... suit up, show up, and step up!

Suiting Up ...

Means you get up every day and don clothes for your role. Like an actor playing a part, you look, sound, and feel it. Weather it is a suit or uniform, you are off to a great start. Putting a smile on your bright, shiny face is even better.

Showing Up ...

Means you are willing to step on stage to play your part. You know your role and lines. You've got your moves.

Stepping Up ...

Means no hesitation on your part. You roll up your sleeves and get the job done. Does not matter if it is dirty work.

It is not always easy to suit up, show up, and step up. Sometimes it may seem easier to sit on the sidelines or linger backstage. Yet, that does not serve anyone. Your only way to stay in the game is to play. Commit yourself, have a game plan, and follow through. Step into that spotlight, and your light will shine it's brightest. Ever!
